

May 31, 2007

Dear Parents and Guardians,

This will be the final Thursday note for the year as we only have six days and 1 hour left of school. I wish all families a very nice summer, it has been a pleasure working with all of your children. We are really wrapping up all of our subjects in these last days...here's what we will be doing.

Math - We have finished unit 12 which is the end of the math book. We will concentrate on reviewing and securing some of the math skills that were trouble spots for the class, such as multiplying with decimals, adding and subtracting positive and negative numbers and fractions.

Reading- We have been studying Paul Bunyon and tall tales. We are also developing flip books about each student's favorite book or story from the fourth grade year. These books review character, setting, problem and solution. We will continue next week focusing on sequencing and questioning.

Writing - Our research work has come to an end. The brochures were very fun to read and the floats were beautiful to look at. In writing next week we will be creating fourth grade articles which will include the year's highlights, information about important people, favorite activities...

Social Studies - Mrs. Cameron will be discussing people and heritage of the Northeast. The students will also be reviewing the regions.

Grammar - We will continue to focus on various skills such as thesaurus work, sentence correction, and adverbs.
